REPORT FOR 1890.

In presenting the public with the seventeenth annual report of the Boston Training School for Nurses, the Directors feel an increasing gratification in the value of the work, and especially in the results of the current year. We feel that each year brings steady progress and additional success. We have now in the Hospital 9 resident head nurses, 59 pupils, and three probationers. 30 probationers have been accepted as pupils of the school since Dec. 1, 1889. 23 probationers were not accepted. We have graduated thirteen nurses, each of these receiving a diploma as a certificate of her fitness for her work. The requisites for admission to the School are printed with this report.

The work required from the pupil-nurses has been for the most part satisfactorily performed; and, besides the instruction in the wards and at the bedside of the patients, the nurses have had, through the kindness of the Hospital Staff, the benefit of the usual series of lectures and the quarterly examinations, by physicians and surgeons of the highest standing in the city. We would here express our indebtedness to these physicians and surgeons. The daily classes by our Superintendent, instruction in cooking at the Boston Cooking School, and treatment by massage have also proved, as heretofore, valuable additions to the training. We would also add our thanks and appreciation for the kindness and ready assistance of the House Officers and Internes, and the co-operation of the Superintendent and Trustees of the Hospital.

Until quite recently the majority of people have thought that any one could nurse ; but, since the establishment of training schools, a trained nurse, in a serious illness, has become almost a necessity to the patient, and valuable, not only in the immediate care of the invalid, but as one on whom the family may throw full responsibility in the absence of the physician, and feel confidence in the result.

There is a great difference between hospital nursing and private nursing. The technical and moral training, and the discipline that each nurse must undergo in the hospital, and the knowledge she gains in a variety of medical and surgical cases while there, are of the first importance; but, valuable as this is, the experience that family life alone can give is only to be gained after she is thrown upon her own resources. The numerous trials that must necessarily arise when brought into close contact with various dispositions, and the varied life in a private family, the discretion and tact needed, cannot be acquired in a hospital.

No nurse receives a diploma from the Boston Training School who has not passed a satisfactory examination by physicians and surgeons, at the end of a two years' course, and whose conduct during that time has not shown a good record. We would request our friends who have the benefit of the services of a nurse to ask to see her diploma, should any question arise as to her standing or statements.

We aim at a high standard in the selection from the many candidates for admission, and our present excellent Superintendent has ably followed in the footsteps of her predecessors. To her wise judgment and insight into character, as well as her quiet influence and impartiality among the nurses when in the Hospital, we owe the increasing excellence of the quality of nurses.

We would again appeal to the friends of the School to continue their annual subscriptions, and, if possible, to extend their interest and try to influence others to place their names upon our annual list.

BOSTON TRAINING SCHOOL FOR NURSES

ATTACHED TO THE

MASSACHUSETTS GENERAL HOSPITAL IN BOSTON.

The Directors of the Boston Training School for Nurses have made arrangements with the Trustees of the Massachusetts General Hospital for giving a two years' training to women desirous of becoming professional nurses.

Persons wishing to receive this course of instruction must apply to the Superintendent of the Boston Training School, Massachusetts General Hospital, Blossom Street, Boston.

The most desirable age for Candidates is from twenty-five to thirty-five years. They must be in good health, and must refer to some responsible person as to their moral character. After approval by the Superintendent of the School and the Resident Physician of the Hospital, they are received for one month on probation. During this month they are boarded and lodged at the Hospital, but receive no compensation.

They are under the authority of the Resident Physician and the Superintendent, and are subject to the Rules of the School and of the Hospital. Their fitness for the work, and the propriety of retaining or dismissing them at the end of the month of trial, are determined by the Resident Physician and the Superintendent and Directors of the School; and the same authorities can also discharge them at any time during their connection with the School, in case of misconduct or inefficiency. They reside in the Hospital, and serve as assistant nurses in the wards. When on service, they are required to wear the Hospital uniform.

TRAINING.

Those fulfilling the conditions of the probationary month are accepted as pupils. They must sign a written agreement to remain at the School for two years (including the probationary month) and to conform to its rules.

The instruction includes: —

1. The dressing of burns, sores, and wounds; the preparation and application of fomentations, poultices, cups, leeches, and of minor dressings.

2. The administration of enemata, the use of the catheter, and the giving of baths.

3. The principles of massage, with practical exercises.

4. The care of the patient's room; the making of beds; the principles of ventilation, and their practical application.

5. The management and care of helpless patients; the prevention and treatment of bed-sores.

6. The manufacture of bandages; the application of bandages and splints.

7. Emergencies and their treatment.

8. The preparation, cooking, and serving of food; the use of stimulants.

They are also taught how to observe accurately the secretions, expectorations, pulse, skin, appetite, temperature, sleep, eruptions, and the effect of diet, stimulants, and medicine. They are also instructed with regard to the management of convalescents. The instruction is given mainly by the Superintendent and by the Head Nurses. Lectures, recitations, and demonstrations, by members of the Hospital Staff, also take place at stated periods.

Examinations, conducted by a Board of Medical Examiners, are held quarterly.

The pupils are employed as assistant nurses in the wards of the Hospital, receive ten dollars ($10) a month (after the probationary month) during the first year, and fourteen dollars ($14) a month during the second year, for their personal expenses. Their education during this time is considered a full equivalent for their services. During both years of the course, they board and lodge at the Hospital. Their washing is also done at the expense of the Hospital. Pupils are required to come prepared to pay for their uniform at the close of the probationary month. The expense of the uniform will not exceed twelve dollars.

When the full term of two years is satisfactorily completed, a diploma is given certifying to their period of training, their proficiency and moral character. The Training School provides a badge to which graduates are entitled on the payment of $7.00.

The Directors reserve the right to terminate the connection of a pupil with the School for any reason which they may deem sufficient.

A graduate of this School, who desires to acquire a special proficiency in the care of cases of nervous and mental diseases, has the privilege, under certain restrictions, of entering the McLean Asylum Training School for Nurses. Such graduates will, after one year's satisfactory study, receive the diploma from that School, in addition to the diploma received from the Boston Training School.
